Beware of imitations and substitutes unscrupulous dealers tell you are "just as good as" Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

These cheap concoctions are foisted on the people with the intent to deceive by dealers mindful of their profits only and caring nothing for the health of their patrons. Some try to make you believe it is Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Others go as far as to refill our bottles with these concoctions and endeavor to fool the people into buying their spurious goods as the genuine. Keep a close watch and do not buy one of these refilled

When a remedy has been before the public for more than half a century, has been prescribed and used by the best doctors and in prominent hospitals, and has carried the blessings of health into as many thousands of homes as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, imitations are bound to arise. There is a wide latitude in the matter of hat trimming this season, both in materials used and in the combining of them. Metal laces of all description are very popular and most striking when combined with fur and velvet as is the silver lace in the hat sketched above. This has a low, broad crown and wide brim bending up most gracefully at the left and is covered with black velvet. Around the crown the broad band of silver lace edged by narrow fur is loosely laid and decorated on the right side by a wreath of small silver lace roses.

They can be inexpensively constructed, and they will be liked by both men and women and are suitable, as far as good form goes, to give to man friends. Incidentally nothing could be simpler than the manufacture of these covers, for a woman has only to take the measurements of some book and then make the leather slip large enough to be slipped on easily.

There must be a piece of thin canvas stiffening about half an inch wide, in a strip long enough to go around the outer edge of the leather.

In this way an even stiff line is made, and over it the soft leather must be turned. The silk is basted down, putting the raw edge in, and the whole carefully sewed on the machine.
